Wherever I go, there is something – or someone – to help keep children safe.

Wherever I go, there are places with fences, ramps, rails, walkways, doors, or locks that help to keep children safe.
Wherever I go, there is safety equipment that helps to keep children safe. Things like helmets, life jackets, or seat belts.
Wherever I go, there are signs to help keep children safe.
Wherever I go, there are laws to keep children safe. That’s one reason why children wear seatbelts in a car.

Wherever I go, there are rules to help keep children safe. When I am at school, my class forms a line to walk safely from one place to another.
Wherever I go, there are people that help to keep children safe. Parents and grandparents, crossing guards, teachers, police officers and firefighters all work to keep me safe.
Wherever I go, there’s one more person who may help to keep me safe. He will always be with me, every second of my whole life. That person is me!
